Fallon home security solutions

Increasing numbers of homeowners in Queensland are upgrading their property with smart technology as it gives them peace of mind knowing that they'll be notified in the event of an intrusion.

CCTV cameras and access control add to the physical security of a property and are effective deterrents to potential intruders.

The three types of security to protect your home

CCTV CAMERAS

ACCESS CONTROL & INTERCOMS

ALARM SYSTEMS***

Keep an eye on your home at all times

Closed Circuit Television cameras are a visible part of your security system and are the first line of defence.

Benefits of CCTV cameras

- Smartphone compatibility - monitor areas of your home when you're on the go
- Night and day visibility available
- Wide angle for maximum coverage of any area
- Make sure the kids are playing safely outside

Always know who is at your door

Access control systems can range from wireless gate opening, smart intercoms and pin pads to wireless key fobs and more.

Benefits of smart intercoms and access control

- Determine who is standing in front of your door from wherever you are
- Control the access to your home via your mobile device
- If a family member is locked out, simply unlock the door for them via your app
- Record your missed visitors

For peace of mind when you're not home

In combination with the other elements of home security an alarm system provides invaluable peace of mind when you're away from home.

Benefits of alarm systems

- In the event of a break in an audible alarm is activated instantly
- You will receive an alert on your mobile device so you know what's happening even when you're not home

*Full peace of mind comes with the certainty that wherever you are and at whatever time of the day, you can be sure that your home or business are under the highest level of protection. But if your alarm system isn't registered with a reputable monitoring and patrol service, then even a high-end security alarm system can create a false sense of security.

Outdoor LED motion sensor lighting

Motion sensor lights will automatically turn on when they detect movement without having to flick a switch.

They're a great addition to your home's security, as they are not only convenient for when you go outside in the dark, they will also make you aware of any visitor that comes near your home. So if something is going on around your house, you'll be aware of it.

Professional monitoring for a higher level of protection

Maximise the security of your home or business and put your mind at ease by registering your alarm system with a back to base alarm monitoring company you can trust.

Professional alarm monitoring gives you the peace of mind of round-the-clock surveillance. So if you're away from home and an unusual activity is detected and triggers the alarm, you can trust that you will instantly be notified by the monitoring centre that will provide the necessary emergency services such as sending an experienced patrol to your home.
